Words from the Chairman

Since the release of your examination results and your acceptance into HKU, your life might have gone up and down like a roller coaster. As a freshman, you may be surrounded by excitement and dreams as well as hesitations and frustration. Among the people you meet when you enter this new phase of life, some may suggest you become the ex-co of a society or enjoy hall life, others may be desperate for a relationship, or invest time in part-time jobs, but perhaps the voice inside has told you to study hard. How do you make your choice? As a Sociologist (Social Sciences student), what responsibilities in society should you take? Only you have the answers to the questions.

Begin your search for the answers by flipping open Snakers, find your friends in our orientation programs, set your goals and make your three-year University life abundant!

Welcome to HKU and to the 'Sociologist' family!

Ronald Chan
Chairman
Social Sciences Society, HKUSU
Session 2010

About Us:

Social Sciences Society, HKUSU is the only student-run organization which represents all the undergraduate students in the Faculty of Social Sciences. 42 years since the establishment in 1968, we have been striving to achieve the six objectives as stated in our constitution:

- a) to promote the general welfare of the members;
- b) to promote comradeship and understanding among members;
- c) to promote the study of Social Sciences;
- d) to foster a sense of consciousness of the local and global communities;
- e) to represent the students of the Faculty as a whole; and
- f) to facilitate mutual understandings between the Faculty and the members of the Society.

We are also one of the largest non-profit making student-run organizations in the University of Hong Kong which has about 1000 members all together. Apart from that, we also have 5 affiliated academic societies. They are: Geographical, Geological & Archaeological Society, SSS, HKUSU; Psychology Society, SSS, HKUSU; Politics and Public Administration Association, SSS, HKUSU; Social Work and Social Administration Society, SSS, HKUSU; and The Sociology Society, SSS, HKUSU.

Succeeding the theme "Sociologist: Be Active! Be Innovative!" of the previous session, we have made "Local Roots Global Routes" our session theme, with a focus on promoting the engagement of students towards social issues and enhancing friendship and mutual understanding within the Society.

freshmen courses

GEOG1012 Economic and Social Development in an urbanizing world

Dr James J Wang

No tutorials and mid-term examination in this course; only two comparatively short essays and one two-hour final examinations are required. To those who have not studied Geography at high school, it is not difficult to master it in the junior courses, especially as there are only a few required readings. Similar to other Social Sciences subjects, it concludes economic and social development situation in several theories. Understanding the entire world makes you a real 'Global Citizen'. To succeed in this course, use more diagrams and code your examples with reference and exact data.

JMSC 0101 Principles of Journalism and the News Media

Dr. Yin Chan

Don't think that only those with aspirations in reporting or news production take this course, it is for all those who have an eye open for the latest news and happenings and who simply want to know more about the media: its functions, formats and future. Expect to listen to guest lectures, watch movie clips and learn about the hype and cool; from everything to social media, internet, press freedom and TV production. Although there is no essay, there are a few quizzes from time to time, as well as a project that involves the usage of Wikipedia, a group presentation, and a take home exam that tests you on the application of concepts taught in lectures and tutorials.

SOCI 1001 Introduction to Sociology

Dr. Cheris Chen

One thing you won't be feeling in these lectures is bored, as funny video clips and lively real cases are often scattered throughout lesson time, facilitating students to probe into the functioning of our society. In this course, you will learn about 3 famous sociological theories (Weber, Durkehim and Marx) and then learn to apply them in analyzing social norms and discuss social patterns in different sociological perspectives. Homework wise, you will need to choose particular readings for writing memos (short summaries). One group presentation is also included.

SOCI 1002 Discovering Society
Prof. Lui Tai Lok

This course teaches you what sociology is and how to think as a sociologist. For example, why is shopping a social activity? Requirements are to read a handful of readings, understand the sociological explanations of social inequalities and learn several advanced terms. The contents of the lectures and tutorial lessons are separate, so don't skip the lectures!

SOWK1001 Introduction to social administration
Dr. Yeung Sam

Although social administration sounds like a complicated area to grasp, the course content itself isn't too difficult. It allows you to probe deep into the welfare system and social policies in Hong Kong, including education, medical care, and privatization and provoke you to reflect upon your life in this city. Though initially when learning about the historical background may seem slightly less interesting, the majority of the later content about how the government goes about introducing policies and satisfying citizen's needs is exciting. The homework load is light, with only one presentation and a follow up essay. Tutorials are once per week, and students discuss further what they have heard from class presentations.

POLI 1003 Making Sense of Politics
Dr. Lam Wai Man

The lectures in this course are conducted in an interactive atmosphere, and students are always invited to express their own views. Throughout the course you will get to learn all the basics of politics and comparative politics such as states and nations, democracy, voting and constitutions. Some political concepts may be confusing, but the best way to digest them is to pay attention to different political situations in different countries, history and news. An essay is required, but you will get a good grade if you know how to apply the concepts with examples in reality and present your own ideas in a systematic and logical way and evaluate the essay from different perspectives.

Psychology 1001 Introduction to psychology
Prof. Terry Au

This course is suitable for all who want to have a taste of psychology and the way and reasons behind how humans behave. Throughout the course you will get to learn about emotions, memory, personality, cognition, social psychology and much more! Lectures are always fun packed with the lecturer's sharing of personal stories and interesting PowerPoint slides. Assessment includes taking quizzes (and yes they can be done more than once), doing a group Persuasion project which involves putting to the test marketing and consumer behavior psychology, simplifying an academic psychology article and two exams. As long as you revise the lecture notes, lecturer's personal examples, and the relevant details in the textbook, you'll be fine!

Psychology 1004 Introduction to qualitative methods in psychology
Prof. Terry Au

If you're planning to major in psychology, this course is a must take. It is not for the faint hearted in maths though, as although lectures cover simple secondary concepts of research methods and data analysis, contents range to t-tests, chi-square tests and analysis of variance. But don't worry, there are plenty of example questions provided for each new topic you learn. Make full use of the tutorials, as they are where you get most of the additional information and tips for the problem sets (bi-weekly homework) and exams. SPSS, the statistics software with faster and more convenient functions than excel will be taught. Three quizzes and one final test, as well as one piece of independent coursework also contribute to the grading.
